On the basis of field observations, it is believed that the use of mercantile credit in the Hope-Magnolia district has declined as much if not more than in any other cotton district of the state.—Bulletin No. 237, University Agricultural Experiment Station.

Arkansas Tourists To Study Dairying

Cane Pulp To Be Factor In Paper, Dixie Tour Hears

Is Big Chance for South, Cornstalk Men Say In Illinois.

STOP AT DANVILLE

South Arkansas Party Plunges Into Industrial Sightseeing.

By GROVER A. ZINN

Special Correspondent, The Star
DANVILLE, Ill., Aug. 23.—The South Arkansas Chamber of Commerce Farm and Industrial tour today moved into northern Illinois and Indiana and the members started their first strenuous day of actual study of the great dairy industry that surrounds this section.

Arriving in Danville much too early for those inclined to sleep late the group was met at the train and escorted to one of the leading hotels by representatives of the Chamber of Commerce, where breakfast was served.

Following that an inspection tour was started, which included a trip through the plant of the cornstalk production company, a large farm on the outskirts of the city, and what is said to be the only plant in the country where paper is made from cornstalks. A number of industrial plants were visited here.

In the town made famous by the celebrated Uncle Joe Cannon who died in the house of congress here, the length of an ordinary lifetime, we were told that the cornstalk paper business is to become a great industry in the south, with sugar cane pulp instead of cornstalks as the raw material.

This afternoon the special train is scheduled to move on to Lafayette, La., and Port Wayne, Ind., with a trip through the grounds of Purdue University and short inspection tours of the three cities.

Found memories are being recalled by A. C. Neal of El Dorado as the Lafayette visit draws near. He expects to spend most of his sojourn on the campus of Purdue, his alma mater which he has not seen in many years.

A slight rain this morning failed to dampen the trippers but offered some relief from the sweltering heat that has been down since we left home Wednesday.

South Dead From Fall Down Elevator Shaft

NASHVILLE, Tenn., August 22.—(AP)—Hayes Walsh, 16-year-old elevator operator, is dead today as a result of a fall down the elevator shaft from the main floor to the basement in one of the hotels here. He has just finished a 15-minute rest period, opened the elevator shaft door with his pass key, not knowing another employee had moved the lift, and plunged to his death.

Dynamited Vats Are Being Rebuilt

Howard County Citizens Disapprove Lawless Methods.

NASHVILLE, Ark., Aug. 23.—The dipping vats dynamited at a number of places in Howard county since the war against dipping started several months ago are practically all being rebuilt and insurance has been given, according to H. B. Aldridge, U. S. inspector in charge of the work, that all will be rebuilt.

Many of the new vats, though owned by individuals, will be free to those desiring to dip, this being done as a step to further work of tick eradication through this territory.

Mr. Aldridge reports that the people through the county generally are indignant at the lawless destruction of property and condemn heartily such tactics, the feeling being as prevalent among those opposing the program as those favoring it, because the loss of a vat imposes a hardship on all cattle owners.

Ab Pate Reminds Star of Wild Waves and Things

Ab Pate is never so happy as when he's enjoying himself. These sultry, sweltering days here in Arkansas mean nothing in his young life, for from Atlantic City he mails us a card depicting himself disporting in the ocean cool and blue. The background showed a number of late 1929 model one-piece bathing suits, properly filled out, and a line or two in Mr. Pate's well-known chirography assuring us he was having the time of his life.

The Great Lakes and Canada are included in the itinerary of the party of which Mr. and Mrs. Pate are members and they will be away a week or so yet.

Cement Plant Is Ready To Operate

Believed First Finished Product To Be Turned Out Today.

OKAY, Aug. 23.—(AP)—The big cement plant of the Arkansas Portland Cement Co., located at Okay, is ready for operation and P. C. VanZandt, engineer in charge has stated he expects to have the plant in operation this Friday afternoon.

From the time the finish will be put in operation, there will be a steady stream of cement flowing into the storage bins. All other units of the plant are already in operation.

The plant, one of the largest in the entire state and representing an investment greater than any other in Southwest Arkansas, is a permanent affair, with material at hand to furnish source of supply for many years.

Double Hanging In Canada Jail

Woman Executed Is Sixth In History of the Dominion.

HULL, Quebec, Aug. 23.—(AP)—Philip LeFevre, 32-year-old trapper of the Garticum hills, and Marie Viau, 42-year-old mother of eight children, were hanged today for the murder of the woman's husband seven months ago.

As the rain poured down in the jail yard the trapper was first to mount the scaffold, followed 16 minutes later by Mrs. Viau. She was the sixth woman in the history of the woman to be hanged. The two were convicted of poisoning Zephyr Viau.

Although authorities had made a screen to protect the inside of the jail yard from the prying eyes of the curious, a large crowd milled around outside the scene.

Two masses were said for the condemned before they went to the scaffold. Mrs. Viau was the more composed of the two as she sat in her cell, cold and stern and unmoved, while LeFevre sobbed and prayed.

It's Now A Horse Apiece

Twist Auto and Equine

RAVENNA, O., Aug. 23.—Twenty years ago it was a common occurrence to see a horse frightened by an automobile. But recently at Mantua Center, near here, an auto ran into a telephone pole when a runaway horse dashed down the street toward it.

The auto suffered a skinned nose and a broken wheel, while the horse continued down the road.

Martha Moore, Christine Bunker and Robert Kinsley sustained slight injuries when the auto took flight.

Hope Boy In Army Writes To the Folks Back Home

Remypsey Dyas, Hope boy doing a bit of service with Uncle Sam, writes Star from Fort Meade, S. D., where he is located, and reports that he's getting a real kick out of army life.

Fort Meade is in a wonderful country, young Dyas says, with every opportunity for a soldier to enjoy life in the open. The work is not arduous and after a fellow gets the hang of it he finds much time to devote to his own affairs.

Officers Find Killing Witness

Man In Hotel Room Saw Altercation Between Officers and Maniac.

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Aug. 23.—(AP)—Discovery of an eye-witness to the altercation yesterday between Joseph Dodson Choate, 26, former inmate of a sanitarium, and two plainclothes officers has uncovered the theory that one of the officers might have fatally shot the other while attempting to protect him from the attack.

Herbert Harris a contractor, witnessed the attack from a hotel window across the street. He expressed the belief that the shot killed Wright was fired accidentally by Smith after he had been felled by a blow from a tire tool in the hands of Choate.

Liner Rescues Crew of Burning Fruit Carrier

NEW ORLEANS, August 22.—(AP)—The entire crew of 26 of the old New Orleans fruit carrier Quinlan, reported on fire in the Atlantic and deserted by her crew, has been rescued by the liner, President Harrison, the boats owners here have been advised by a telegram from the Dollar line.

Heavy Docket for Howard Circuit

Liquor Violations In Excess of All Other Criminal Charges.

NASHVILLE, Ark., Aug. 23.—The August term of Howard county circuit court will convene here Monday morning next with Judge Ben E. Ishel, of DeQueen, presiding and prosecuting attorney DeLaney of Ashdown representing the state in criminal cases.

Both civil and criminal divisions of the docket are unusually heavy, there being a large number of cases carried over from previous terms docketed for trial this time. Court officials have announced the docket for trial this time. Court officials have announced the docket will be cleared as nearly as practicable during the term, some disposition other than continuances to be made of all pending matters.

The most important matter to be looked into by the grand jury will be the several dipping vat dynamiting which have occurred in the county recently. One arrest has already been made in connection with these occurrences and it is expected others will follow an investigation.

Arkansas Woman Holds Lead In Air Derby

TULSA, Okla., Aug. 23.—(AP)—Mrs. Louise McNettridge Thaden of Pittsburgh, maintained her lead in the women's national air derby when she landed her plane first in the municipal airport here today at 10:16:16 from Fort Worth.

Tha Rasche, German woman pilot, followed her in by a scant few seconds.

Funeral Service for Harold Ward Held Here Today

El Dorado Schoolman Is Laid To Rest At Rose Hill.

IS WIDELY HONORED

Born In Illinois, Brilliant Career Cut Short At Only 29.

Funeral services for Harold E. Ward, dean of the Junior College and principal of the High School at El Dorado, who died here yesterday, were held at 3 o'clock this afternoon in the First Baptist church.

Dr. Charles E. Dicken, superintendent of El Dorado public schools and who as former president of Ouachita college was a teacher of Mr. Ward, officiated, together with the pastor, Dr. W. A. Boken. Burial was in Rose Hill cemetery.

The body lay in Dr. G. E. Cannon's residence during the morning, the home of Mrs. Ward's father, and was taken to the church shortly after noon. A host of telegrams of condolence were received last night and this morning, coming from educators and friends of the youngest school executive in a major city of the state.

Pall Bearers

The pall bearers were: Active: Max Shilling, of the El Dorado Lions club; Bill Graves, a grammar school principal, and Louis Ellis, former principal, of the same city; E. E. Austin, county superintendent of schools, Hope; B. H. Hamm, a personal friend of Mr. Ward; Alex. H. Washburn, publisher of The Star and former editor of the El Dorado News; Ched Hall, and Dr. R. R. Robins, all of Hope.

Honorary: Dr. L. M. Lile, Dr. T. B. Carrigan, Dr. J. H. Weaver, of Hope; Dr. Charles D. Johnson, president of Ouachita college; Peter Zellars, member of the Ouachita faculty and official representative of the college; Dr. J. L. Bond, superintendent of county schools, El Dorado; E. L. Compere and Alfred Hall, also of El Dorado; J. A. Moore, of Stamps; D. L. Paisley, of Hope; Joe Zanzoni, of Jackson, Miss.; and A. L. Burns, superintendent of county schools, Magnolia.

Mr. Ward was born 29 years ago at Alton, Ill., but his family early removed to Arkadelphia, where he was reared and educated. Upon graduation from Ouachita college there, he attended school in Port Worth. He obtained his master's degree at Peabody, Nashville, Tenn., and at the time of his death had an unfinished doctor's degree at Columbia University.

El Dorado Career

Mr. Ward's first teaching experience was obtained in Northeast Arkansas, but in 1925 he entered upon the most important part of his career, in the public school system of El Dorado. He became dean of the El Dorado Junior College in his second year, which position he had held continuously ever since, also becoming principal of the senior high school.

He is survived by his wife, the former Mary Cannon, of Hope, and two sisters, Mrs. L. M. Jones, of Fort Worth, and Mrs. A. B. Wake, of Portland, Ore.

Among the out-of-town guests and relatives attending are: J. G. Lile, superintendent of schools at Stephens, Ark.; Mrs. W. M. Jones, of Magnolia; Mr. and Mrs. L. M. Jones and baby, of Fort Worth; Miss Stella Whiteside, of El Dorado Junior College; Dr. and Mrs. M. V. Russell, of El Dorado; Peter Zellars, of Arkadelphia; and Mrs. Harvey Oliver, of Stamps.

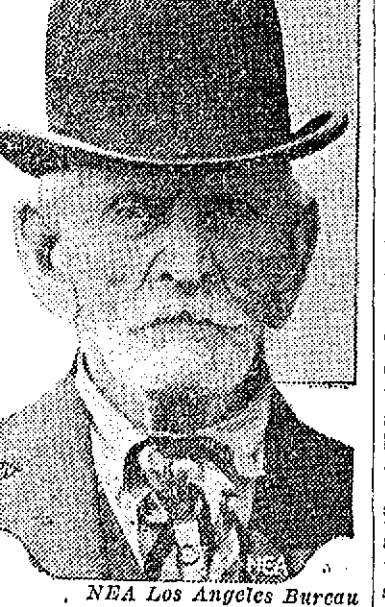

Dog Saves Feline Life

But Earns No Gratitude

MAJONE, N. Y., Aug. 23.—Dogs are not commonly known to befriend cats, yet one instance of such anomaly was witnessed here. The cat had been missing three days. Its mistress hunted vainly for her, notwithstanding felines are supposed to return of their own will. Finally a state trooper, apprised of the lost pet, observed a dog standing on a rock ledge backing vociferously at an island in Salmon river. Search of the island brought forth the cat, a bit haggard at having been marooned three days, but still able to "spit" at the dog which had unwittingly saved her life.

Alabama Negro Admits Killing

Going To Electric Chair Makes Statement and Admits Crime.

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Aug. 23.—(AP)—Lester Bouyer, negro, died in the electric chair at state prison here today for the murder of Jack Hines, young Eufala, Ala., mechanic on the night of July 10. He entered the death chair at 12:12 and was pronounced dead at 12:26.

Bouyer made a long statement before the current was turned on, admitting killing Hines but denying he attacked Hines' young woman companion, which crime he is said to have admitted after his arrest.

The Southwest Arkansas Farm

The following is an excerpt from "The Farm Credit Situation in Southwestern Arkansas," University of Arkansas bulletin No. 237, prepared by B. M. Gile, which has just been received in Hope. The bulletin, which may be obtained free by writing Dean Van T. Gray, College of Agriculture, Fayetteville, Ark., shows that the Hope-Magnolia district has probably made the greatest progress toward diversification of any cotton section in Arkansas. The Star is publishing an excerpt from the bulletin every day.

Purpose of Seasonal Credit

The purposes of the short-term credit in the Hope-Magnolia district in 1927 have been shown. The owners used 32 per cent and the third and fourth tenants used 50 per cent of their seasonal credit for food and clothing.

Probably the farmers in no other cotton district in Arkansas could show a lower percentage of their seasonal credit used for the purpose of buying personal consumption goods. The reason for this may be that a larger percentage of the farmers in this district have a small cash income during the crop-growing months from dairy products, eggs, watermelons, cantaloupes, strawberries, and the like, than in most other districts. This enables them to provide for a part of their personal consumption requirements without the use of credit. The annual cash income of farmers in this district is not large and it is good economy for them to produce the fruit, vegetables and meat consumed.

The owners used 68 per cent and the tenants 50 per cent of their seasonal credit to obtain control of productive factors. For owners the more important expenditures were for fertilizer, furnishing tenants and buying work stock, machinery, and supplies. Only 4 per cent was used by the owners for buying feed for work stock. Most of this was for concentrates. Among the productive purposes for which tenants obtain credit, the more important were for buying fertilizer and feed.

Long-Term Credit

The undesirable occasions for long-term debts such as refunding seasonal debts and losses from other than farm activities were

Sheriff McRae Settles With State Treasurer

LITTLE ROCK, Aug. 23.—(AP)—Sheriff Dorsey McRae, of Hope, Hempstead county, settled with state auditor J. Oscar Humphrey on taxes due the state today. He paid $57,180.00, which is in addition to several thousand dollars paid a few weeks ago.

Looks Like Cooper, Tex., Man Due to Move to Hope

Tom A. Lambeth, of Cooper, Texas, just 86 years young, is here on a visit to his son, Scott, and family, and Thursday the family and "Grandpa" went to Bridewell's lake for a late afternoon fishing excursion.

Well, Scott loaded up some fishing tackle, as did Mrs. Lambeth, and they began to pull in a few little fellows weighing a pound or so each. "Grandpa" stood it for a time and then decided this younger generation didn't know much about fishing, anyway. Into a boat he climbed with Scott and starts fishing.

Presently something happened—and then many things happened! And when the smoke had cleared away and the happenings ceased, Lambeth, senior, was still in the boat, fishing pole in his hand, while attached to the business end of his line was a black bass tipping the scales at so close to six pounds you couldn't tell the difference.

Hope watermelons had already favorably impressed the Texas man. A black bass the size of the one he caught will likely finish the job and chances are he'll be moving "us" with us to stay. And Scott and his good wife cheerfully admit that some of the finer points of fishing they didn't understand until "Grandpa" got in action yesterday.

First Air Craft Ever To Attempt Hazardous Flight

Commander Expects To Land At Los Angeles Tuesday.

SHIP GIVES POSITION

Radio Reports From Dirigible Picked Up Near San Francisco.

TOKYO, Aug. 23.—(AP)—Pointing her nose to the east for the first flight ever attempted over the Pacific ocean, the Graf Zeppelin, mighty German air liner, left at 3:13 p. m., 1:13 a. m. Eastern Standard Time, today for Los Angeles.

For hours a north wind had been blowing, making removal of the dirigible from the hangar highly dangerous, and a further delay in the dirigible's departure seemed inevitable. In addition, reports received indicated unfavorable weather and seemed to assure the flight would not be attempted before Saturday.

Shortly after noon, however, the north wind died down and with the unexpected change in the weather came the decision of Dr. Hugo Eckener, commander, to start. Passengers were ordered aboard and the ground crew dragged the big ship from her hangar. A few minutes later the ship was in the air, heading directly northeast, and within seven minutes was out of sight in the direction of the open Pacific.

Dr. Eckener said he expected to reach Los Angeles not later than Tuesday afternoon.

Harold E. Ward

THE death of Harold E. Ward, young school executive of El Dorado, in this city yesterday, was a shock to the teaching fraternity of Arkansas.

Society suffers a grievous blow when raising and instructing a citizen he dies with his life-work scarcely begun. Harold Ward was not yet thirty, and his brief career, which had carried him to the most responsible school position of any man his age in the state, made death seem like a tragic thrust at all the faith, hopes and ambitions of humanity.

Yet some men are fortunate, even in death, to have lived longer in their allotted time than others whose history drags out to three-quarters of a century. We think that must have been the experience of Harold Ward, who as a school executive during the time that the oil fields of South Arkansas were flaming with new industry and larger population, contributed his vital bit to the upbuilding of Arkansas.

Time goes by fearfully swift in an oil boom. It went by for Harold Ward, and it went by for this writer; and as fellow citizens thrown together to become friends in that new and tumultuous city which oil was building, we found it a rare and exciting moment in history.

Men live longer in memory who have struggled in strenuous times. Perhaps they deserve more—at any rate, Harold Ward was one of them, and two Arkansas cities pause today in tribute to him.

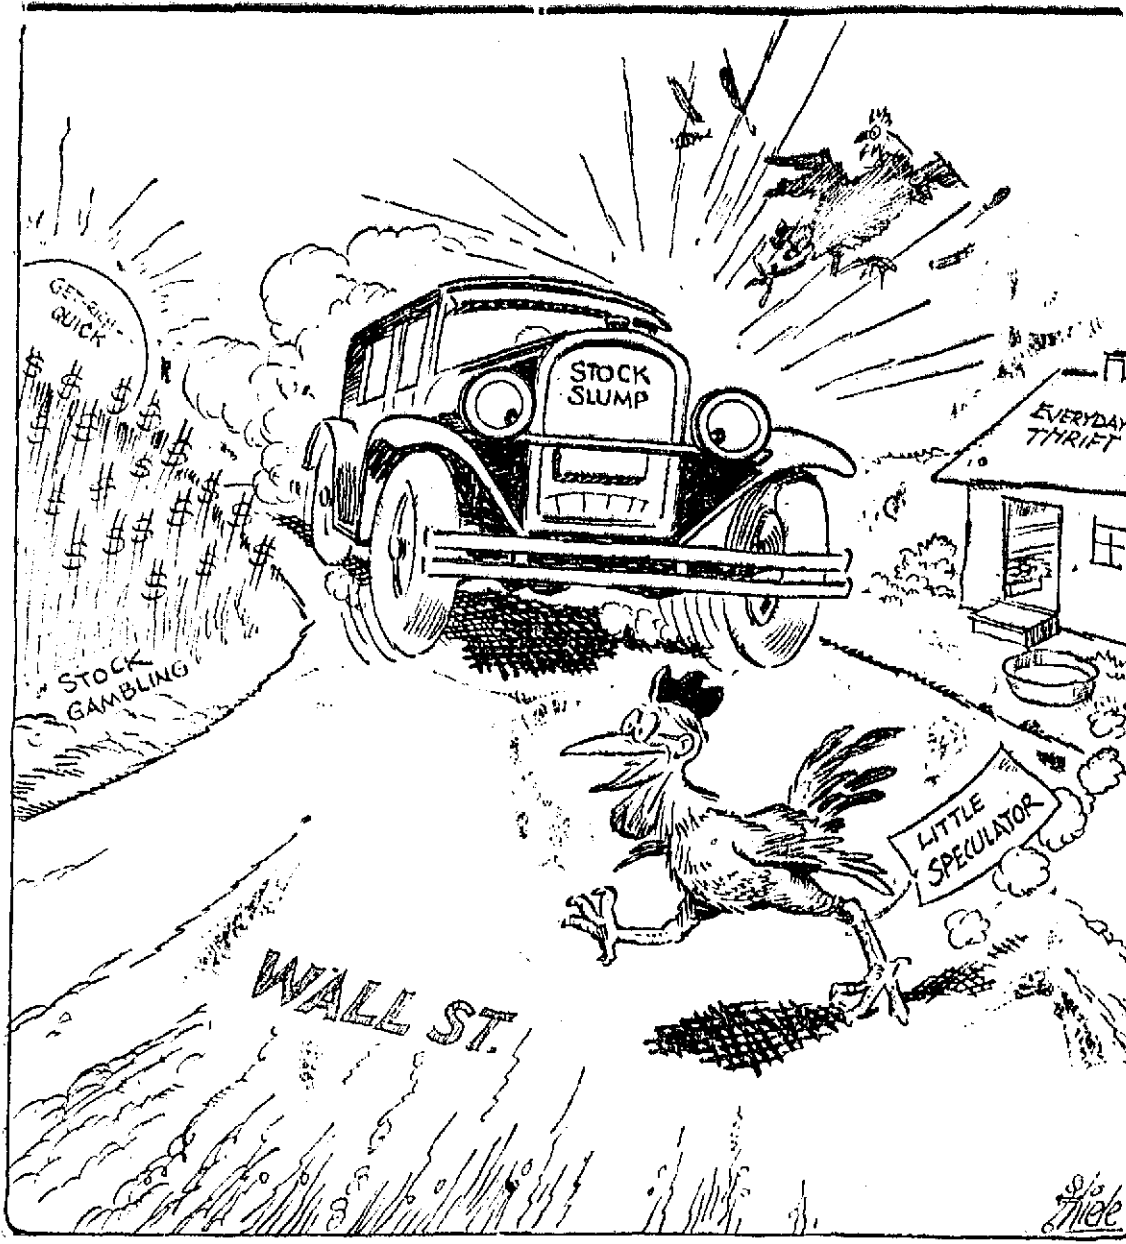

Home Investment Losses

MORRILTON people realize now the $100,000 invested in the cotton mill is gone, or, will be, within the next sixty days when the property will be advertised and sold to satisfy the claims of the bondholders. Although local citizens lost all they put into the project, the sale of the property, will no doubt assure the early operation of the mill, and make it a community asset, which was the principal factor that caused local citizens to invest money in stock in the company. So all is not lost.

The cotton mill isn't the first home industry Morrilton people have invested in and lost. Morrilton isn't the first town in the country to have had such luck. There is not a hamlet in the nation, in all probability, but has a half dozen or more home industries in which the citizens have lost sums ranging from a few thousands of dollars to up in the millions. Another fact is: for every dollar citizens lose in home industries, they lose from five to ten dollars in outside transactions and investments. We believe that a careful check up will show that Morrilton people have lost two or three times the amount of the cotton mill stock in investments outside of the city during the time that has been required to lose the $100,000 placed in cotton mill stock. A howl always goes forth when a local enterprise ceases to function and the stockholders lose all. However, if the innermost secrets of the heart were revealed, we believe, they would show an astonishing sum of money lost by small town investors in out of town projects. The public in general, doesn't know about the outside investments, and because of pride or other reasons, the outside "white elephants" become and remain "hidden skeletons."

Just by way of comparison—and in the hope of increasing the "dairy mindness" of the people of the Petit Jean country we would suggest that the $100,000 placed in the cotton mill, if it had been used to promote dairying would have paid for approximately 700 pure bred Jersey heifers. These heifers with their offspring, and with the proper food and care, would be producing in the vicinity of 42,500 pounds of milk a day. At the market price of $2.10 a hundred pounds this milk would bring in $892.50 a day. We will grant that it would have been folly to have placed 700 pure bred heifers in Petit Jean county at a single time—but we do contend that during the three year period since the cotton mill stock was subscribed, this number could have been handled by the territory with excellent success.—Morrilton Democrat.

Why Does a Chicken Cross the Street?

WASHINGTON LETTER

By RODNEY DOTCHER

WASHINGTON.—The National Commission on Law Observance and Enforcement has assigned a subcommittee to investigate and report on lawlessness by governmental law enforcing officers.

The commission is in an excellent position to go after that problem. It presents a commonly acknowledged situation which has developed untouched perhaps for the reason that there has been no official organization to deal with it. Law enforcing officials seldom investigate and criticize themselves and their lawlessness has had only the courts to restrict them. The courts, of course, are themselves part of the law enforcement system and it is almost certain that the commission will consider the extra legal acts of judges themselves before it is through.

So the commission especially appointed by President Hoover is the only agency which can go into this new field of inquiry. The fact that it has included law enforcement lawlessness as one of the main points on its official agenda demonstrates that this collection of high grade lawyers believes or fears that the high-handedness of policemen, prohibition agents, prosecutors and even judges has tended to create hatred or disrespect for law itself.

Many Angles to Probe
 Many will suppose that the commission plans to devote this study mostly to killings of innocent citizens and other abuses by prohibition agents and coast guardsmen. But inquiry reveals there are quite a few more angles.

Take, for instance, the violation of rights of prisoners by widespread use of third-degree methods.

The New York Bar Association last fall reported flagrant police brutality toward prisoners and recommended cross-examination of prisoners by the police. Perhaps the Hoover Crime Commission will make a similar recommendation. Prisoners have sometimes died from the effects of third-degree beatings. The commission is aware that the practice has spread to the highest branches of government and doubtless recalls the case of the radical Salsedo, who jumped from a high window to his death, allegedly to escape further abuse from Department of Justice agents.

The highest courts are continually undoing the departures from law of lower courts and prosecuting attorneys. The arbitrary actions of a judge often rob a defendant of the protection which he is supposed to be guaranteed in the interests of the innocent. The many exceptions taken by lawyers in trial cases, resulting in successful appeals tends to show the fallibility of judges.

Seems funny how, all of a sudden, convicts have started on a rampage in various prisons. In fact it's a riot!

About 5000 taxicabs were off the New York streets when drivers went on strike. That only left a few odd million for pedestrians to dodge.

Custom officials have been fining Americans, returning from Europe, right and left for undeclared merchandise. Moral: "Well, I declare!"

The Graf Zeppelin stowaway celebrated his 18th birthday shortly after his arrival in this country. Maybe he's old enough to know better now.

 There's one satisfaction for the fellow who hurries in order to be on time for a date with his girl. He can sit down and rest, while waiting for her.

Watermelons and TIRES

By Roy Anderson

Watermelons look a lot alike. So do tires. But you can "plug" a watermelon to make sure it's good. You can't do that with tires. So you've got to rely on the name on the tire.

There's one name that means absolute assurance in the way of a guarantee of goodness through and through in tires. That name is GOODYEAR.

You don't need to paw over a heap of Goodyear Tires to pick out the best. If it says GOODYEAR on the sidewall, you're OK with the first one you lay hands

The "grade" is also shown: DOUBLE EAGLE means "finest that can be made regardless of cost." ALL-WEATHER (heavy duty or regular) means "the best standard quality in the world." SAFEFINDER means "good quality at a big saving."

Because years of experience have shown tire users that "GOODYEAR" means the "Most Value for the Money," Goodyear makes millions more tires than any other company. That fact is the only "plugging" which Goodyear Tires require. It says plenty!

The memory of a kindly word far long gone by,
The fragrance of a fading flower sent lovingly,
The gleam of a sudden smile or sudden tear,
The warm pressure of the hand, the tone of cheer,
Such things we hardly count as ministry.

The givers deeming they have shown scant sympathy,
But when the heart is overwrought, oh, who can tell
The power of such tiny things to make it well!

Mrs. L. J. Baird left yesterday for her home in Dallas, Texas after an extended visit with her mother, Mrs. J. M. Wright.

Friends will be glad to know that the condition of Miss Ruth Allen, who was thought to be seriously injured by falling from a swing yesterday, is very much better today.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Wingfield, Mrs. Chas. Wingfield, Mrs. Kate Holland and little daughter, Sarah Ann, will be Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Crow in Texarkana.

Mr. and Mrs. Conyers Brandon, who have been guests of Mr. and Mrs. George Sandefur have returned to their home in Marshall, Texas.

Mr. and Mrs. Ulmer J. Hester, who have spent the past three weeks visiting in New Orleans, are the guests of Mrs. Charlie Briant, before returning to their home in Union, Miss.

Mrs. Ralph Routon entertained the Thursday bridge club yesterday morning at her home on North Pine street. Mid-summer flowers brightened the rooms, which were arranged for two tables. Mrs. Glomie Graham of Chicago, was a guest of the club and received a gift of remembrance. Following a series of pleasant games, the hostess served a most tempting two course luncheon.

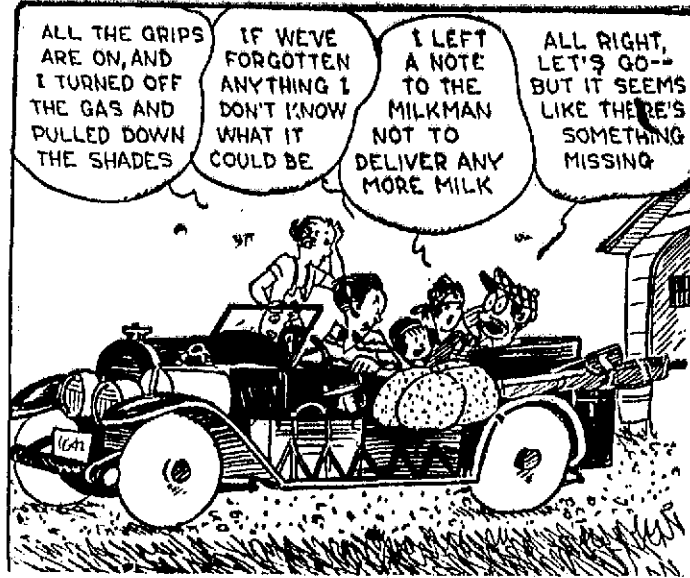

Dr. and Mrs. J. A. Henry entertained at bridge last evening at their home on West Division street as special compliments to their house guests, Misses Virginia and Carolyn Caruthers of New Orleans. Graceful sprays of white clematis mingled with rich summer flowers made a lovely floral background for the three tables arranged for bridge. In keeping with the inspiration for the party, the tables and score pads were daintily pictured with charming young girls. After a series of pleasant games, the hostess assisted by Mrs. I. E. Howell, of Waldo, served a delicious salad and ice course.

Miss Rosalie Gayham of Conning, Arkansas, will arrive today to spend a few days visiting with Miss Selma Lee Bartlett.

Mrs. B. E. Newton and little daughters Anale and Alice will spend the week-end in Little Rock. Mrs. W. Q. Warren has returned from a visit with Mr. and Mrs. W. Q. Warren, Jr. in Hot Springs.

Dear Friends:—

Say folks, it is our privilege to serve most of the men in this neighborhood with real pressing which shapes and reconditions your clothes.

Our method is equally effective with ladies' garments. By regulated steam pressure wrinkles are smoothed gently and safely and loveliest chiffon, crepe or satin comes back soft and fresh, just like new.

For summer sports garments, our service offers far more than the removal of wrinkles. This service restores the original lines and also the fabric itself.

Maniac Kills One, Wounds Another

Police Officers Victims of Insane Man's Murderous Frenzy.

MONTGOMERY, Ala., August 22.—(AP)—One policeman was shot to death and another seriously wounded when apparently attacked by a maniac as they patrolled a beat in the down town area early today.

The attack occurred as the officers, Rex Wright, 38, and Wm. W. Smith, 48, were leaving their auto after they had drawn up to the curb. Wright was killed instantly, a bullet passing through his chest. He was shot after he was felled by a blow on the head with a heavy iron instrument. Smith was struck two blows on the head. The officers were plainclothes men.

James Dodson Chonte, 26, was arrested at the scene after he had calmly informed officers he did it all. He had the pistols belonging to the officers in his pocket when taken into custody.

Smith, at the hospital where he was taken to have two severe gashes on his head attended to, said Wright was shot with his own pistol, two shots being fired, one penetrating the auto. His memory of the affair was hazy, he losing consciousness when first struck.

Thieves Swipe Sheriff's Trousers and Get Away

An elevator operator in Enid, Okla., has discovered a new use for an airplane propeller. He hooked it to a tractor to dry wheat.

Stealing Bases Not the Proper Thing in Quincy

In baseball, base stealing is considered a creditable performance, but only when a game is in progress. Two men in Quincy, Mass., were fined $10 each for stealing three bases literally from the diamond at Milton Park when they thought no one was looking. They didn't try to carry away the home plate, which was nailed down.

Believe It or Not, It's A Rattling Good Fish Yarn

GULFPORT, Miss., Aug. 23.—Herman Ellerman, who lives in a houseboat on the bayou near Gulfport, tells a new "fish story." He said he dropped a valuable setting from his ring into the waters of Bayou Bernard about three weeks ago. Ellerman claimed he found the setting in the inner regions of a fish he was dressing. The setting was none the worse for wear after a sojourn in the fish.

The SHINING TALENT

By ELEANOR EARLY © 1929 BY NEA Service Inc.

THIS HAS HAPPENED

Molly Burnham, lovely play-wright, had an old sweetheart, Jack Wells. But Jack has sailed for Italy with a middle-aged millionaire named Mrs. Bulwer-Eaton. The papers are full of stories about the pair, and Molly is furious. She refuses to talk of Jack, or discuss the affair with even her best friend, Red Flynn, a reporter who usually knows the inside story on scandals.

Then along comes Bob Newton, with a proposal. Bob is a widower. His first wife was Rita Melotte, with whom Molly roomed at college. After Rita's death, Molly took her baby as if it were her own. She is constantly tormented with the fear that something may happen through which she will lose little Rita. That Bob, for instance, may marry and take his daughter away. But Bob, at the moment, is half way through a rather strange proposal. He is asking Molly to marry him, but his technique is hardly orthodox.

Now Go On With the Story
CHAPTER XXXIX

With her hands on his chest, Molly held him from her.

"Go on, Bob," she commanded, "I'd like to know exactly what you're driving at."

"You're different from most girls," he floundered. "You've got more sense. That's what experience does—gives a woman sense. As I was saying—if you'd been an innocent little kid, Red Flynn would have given you such a thrill you'd have thought he was the only man. But you know better than that. You know enough to discount this thrill business. I don't mean that I think you're anything but the straightest girl that ever lived. If I didn't know that, I wouldn't ask you to marry me. I'm only trying to say . . . well, you know what it's all about, Molly. You're not an ingenue made, if you know what I mean."

"No," she conceded, "I'm no ingenue. Go on."

Bob cleared his throat with evident embarrassment.

"I know I don't give you much of a kick," he admitted.

"No," she interrupted coolly. "You don't."

"But that doesn't make any difference," he insisted. "When a girl marries, it's because the man has something she wants. You know, as well as I do, the transitoriness of passionate love. You know it's not worth building on, don't you? I may not have any particular physical attraction to you. But I have something infinitely more important. I have Rita."

Molly stepped back.

"You're not trying to bribe me with Rita, are you?" she asked.

"Why, yes," he admitted. "I suppose I am—if you want to put it like that. You see, I know that you don't love me, Molly. I have to advance some reason to argue my plea."

"But it's ghastly to talk of marriage without love!" she protested.

"No," he contradicted calmly. "I don't think it is. There's a chap named Collins—a doctor—who has written some pretty sensible things about love. He says it's a sort of disease, that lasts about two years. Now, you've seen a lot of life, Molly. What's the use of looking for romantic love, when you know it won't last?"

"But I don't know anything of the kind!" she contradicted indignantly. "I'm an incurable romanticist."

He smiled cynically.

"Crying eternally for love, I suppose? No, you can't make me believe that, Molly. Some women are that way. I know. But you're different."

"I'm not!" she flashed. "I shall never be loved enough for my happiness."

"But I love you!" he cried. "Molly, I'm crazy about you! You know that, don't you? I'll love you, dear. I swear it."

She tried to laugh.

"But you're not romantic, Bob—not really. You make beautiful grand professions. But you're not a bit my kind of a sweetheart. You'd never do all the silly, sweet things I'd adore. Why, you'd simply laugh at my adolescent notions."

"What kind of notions?" he demanded. "What do you mean?"

"Silly things," she floundered. "I'd love a husband who'd write me love notes every day, and pick me nosegays. And buy me things like lollipops and peanuts, because I like them so. And play the guitar nights, and sing me love songs. And kiss me before and after every meal."

"That sounds like a doctor's prescription," he confessed, "it's awfully silly. But there you are! That's the sort of a husband I want. I tell you I'm a born romanticist. You didn't know that, did you? You never guessed I was one of those dreadful sentimentalists who go around simply screaming for love."

"You're a little liar," he told her coolly. "You're cold as ice, and you know it. You sent Jack Wells away, because he couldn't make money enough to satisfy you. You're playing at love now with Red Flynn."

"That's not true!" she defended herself.

But Bob shook his head.

"You're a vain creature, Molly. Love has come to you so often, it's grown a common thing." He was fumbling through his wallet.

"I've something to show you. Clipped it out of a magazine yesterday, because it made me think of you. I was sure I stuck it in here somewhere . . . Oh, here it is."

He held a torn piece of paper to her.

"Read it," he said, "it's prophetic."

She took it curiously, and read aloud:

"Love came to me on many times. It grew a common thing. I thought that it would always come. With song-birds in the Spring:

And so I dreamed and wondered. What next year's love would be. Until one Spring there came no bird. To any blossoming tree."

"It's pretty," she said, shivering delicately. "I suppose it's true too."

"Of course it's true," he told her. "Here's Rita now . . . Think over what I had to say, won't you? You might go further, you know and fare worse. Suppose you married Flynn, our children would have carrot-tops and freckles. Look at my daughter! Did you ever see anything prettier in your life?"

Rita was wearing a cashmere of lilac color, sprigged with pink roses and forget-me-nots. Her linen slippers were gay with embroidery, and her wide-brimmed hat was loaded with tiny flannel flowers. They fluttered from the ends of her sash, and were caught in a perky nosegay on her shoulder.

"Hello, mama! Hello daddy!" She kissed them impartially.

"Oh, daddy, I know some new words. Nancy's nurse told us. 'Permez la bouche.' It means 'shut your mouth,' daddy."

"I told her it was naughty to say that," declared Nurse Marie promptly. "Nancy's nurse is a very common person, Miss Burnham. I shan't allow Rita to talk with her again."

"Oh, that's all right," declared Molly gayly. "It's time Rita got rough. Don't you adore her accent, Bob? I'll run along now, and not bother you. Be a good girl, Precious."

She stooped to kiss Rita, and Bob said again, "Think over what I had to say, won't you?"

"Permez la bouche," she told him over Rita's head, and laughed because he seemed annoyed.

She went from the nursery to her bedroom, and threw herself on the chaise longue. Bob had threatened to take Rita away, if she did not do as he wished. He was stubborn enough to do it, too. Molly knew that he had been more successful lately. He could hire a capable woman to care for the child, and do the housework also. Rita did not need constant supervision any more. She was a healthy, intelligent child. As Molly frequently remarked, having her about was almost like having a grown person in the house. She was such a dependable little creature.

If marriage with Bob was unthinkable, so was life without Rita. Lots of people marry without love, and are happier than the romanticists. So many romances are failures. Expeditions marriages wear better, and last longer. Sensible people bring to matrimony the same sound reasoning with which they consider any other contract. Well, why not be practical? Molly sighed wearily.

"That's the trouble!" she moaned. "I'm not practical. I'm romantic."

If only she could banish Jack from her mind! She had heard from him once, since he sailed for England with Mrs. Bulwer-Eaton. He had sent her a colored postcard of Ponte Vecchio, where she had bought the Borgia ring. There was no message on it. Only his name. But she had told him about finding his ring there, in the old silver-smith's on the corner. And he had probably gone, seeking something for Mrs. Bulwer-Eaton. Something costly, to suit the woman's boyant tastes. Molly had torn up the postcard furiously. And then, unreasonably, she cried, and dropped the fragments in an envelope, and sealed it, and put it away.

She kept Jack's letter in a secret drawer of her desk. They were tied around with purple ribbon. Once, when she was younger, she had sent the pack with sweet lavender. The little book of Oscar Wilde's love verse he gave her was there, too. She bought another copy, because she could not bear to handle the one in which Jack had marked the passages he loved. In side the cover she put the verse about love and a career, that she clapped from a newspaper the day of graduation. It was a long time now since she had opened the drawer where her one-time treasures lay. She felt that she could never stand to look at them again. Red's letters cluttered her bureau drawers. They were witty and entertaining, and she hated to destroy them. She was always meaning to gather them together and put them away somewhere, so she could laugh over them when she was old.

She wondered what Red would think of Bob's proposal. And she lay on her pretty chaise longue for a long time, meditating.

The trouble with me, she decided "is I've been idle too long. I ought to be ashamed of myself! I'll get to work on that book—that's what I'll do!"

The thing had been taking shape in her mind for some time. Gradually. Lazily. Like a furtive dream, full of vague shapes and shadowy substance. The story of a woman who had loved and lost. A woman who had harbored romance for a career and hated the career, and longed for love.

It must be a beautiful book, beautiful written. The heart cry of a lonely woman. She must find lovely words, and magnificent phrases. And she must blend them exquisitely, so the whole should be perfect. The delineation of a woman's life. A passionate woman, passionately seeking. Seeking the things of existence. The creep, trumphy, tawdry things. Fame, and money, and thrills. Satisfaction unto satiety.

And—when she was seated—this woman, who had turned her back on love, would be lonely. And, in her desolation, she would cry with the prophet, "All is vanity and vexation of spirit."

For Molly meant, in her book, to show that the things of life are as nothing. And only the white-hot flame of love has power to comfort, and to heal.

It would be a difficult thing to write. Difficult, because it would be the baring of her own innermost existence. No longer would she keep silence to cloak her wounds. She would write her confession of failure, that all who would might read.

Fired with sudden determination, she began work with fervid enthusiasm. Until dawn, the keys of her little pink typewriter flow up and down beneath her fingers.

She would call her book "Ashes of Desire." And her heroine should be named Lalum. When Molly was quite a small girl, she had two favorite names. One was Lalum. And the other was Jale. She intended, in those days, to have twins, and named them Lalum and Jale. Jale is a Turkish name, and means Dewdrop. Molly never knew what Lalum meant. It was a beautiful name, and, since she was never to have twins now, she might as well use it somehow. It seemed more appropriate for the heroine of a tragic novel than Jale, because tragic heroines seldom suggest dewdrops. Lalum had an intriguing sound that might mean almost anything.

She had a hard time getting the first chapter started. It was difficult when writing plays. All you had to think of for a play was action. Action and dialogue.

But with a novel like "Ashes of Desire" one must be whimsical. Tender. Profound. Molly went to her book shelves, to see how other authors did. There was George Moore's "Sister Teresa," which was, also, the study of a woman's life.

Molly turned to the opening page:

"She was conscious of her indolence: within and without her there was a strange, lifeless calm, a strange inactivity in the air and in her mind. In the landscape and in her there seemed no before and no hereafter. But a glance inward revealed to her the ripple of some hidden anticipation moving under the sullen surface."

Molly loved introspective stuff. Lalum must be introspective. She wondered if it would be plagiarism, if she should begin, "Lalum was conscious of her own futility: within and without her there was emptiness . . ."

She considered a moment, and then began, swiftly to type. Before she stopped, Lalum had become a living, breathing woman. A creature of fire and of promise, she was beloved, of course.

The man who loved her was six feet, one. He had dark hair, and eyes to match. Laughing eyes. And a very strong, determined chin. His hair had a little wave in it, and his chin had a dimple.

Molly took the sheet out of the typewriter, to read what she had written about the man who was Lalum's lover.

"Good heavens!" she thought. "I've described Jack Wells!" . . . And so she had. It was like a portrait.

COLOR

—can make or mar a home.

Certain shades appeal to us, and others displease us. For instance modern hospitals have green walls to keep patients in a good nervous condition. We think of green in connection with trees, shade and coolness. Blue calls the sky to our minds, or the treacherous sea. All a matter of psychology.

Color is purely mental association. The manner of decorating a room can make or break the appearance, and even the feelings of the people in that room.

Bring us your color problems. Let us help you with your interior decorating.

Our store is filled with interesting ideas which will help you achieve good taste, and a proper mental tempo. Here you will also find the modernistic ideas in home furnishings, which will fit into your plans for decorating.

BE CAREFUL NOW! SO YOU DON'T LOSE MY PENNY !!

ONE FOR THE MONEY—TWO FOR THE SHOW—THREE TO MAKE READY !!

OH, WAIT A MINUTE—I'LL TELL YOU A BETTER WAY TO DO IT... DO IT ON THE BACK OF YOUR HAND....

LIKE THIS? SURE, IT DOESN'T MAKE ANY DIFFERENCE NOW! IT'S DONE!!

BOY! ONE OF THEM HAS TO COME UP !!

GEE—I'M ALMOST AFRAID TO LOOK AT IT!!

OH—TAKE YOUR HAND AWAY... IT HAS TO BE ONE OR THE OTHER!

Draw Your Own Conclusions. Cleveland, until a few nights ago, had a big wooden stadium in an amusement park where the John Carroll University football team played its home games. The stadium isn't there any more. It was burned down.

The university people since last fall had spent $10,000 improving the turf on the playing field and they were disturbed when the announcement was made that the owners of the stadium had leased the place for a prize fight.

They knew what the tramping of a crowd of feet would do to the virgin turf and they secured an injunction restraining the prize fight promoters from using the stadium.

And the firemen said when they first saw the blaze: "That's a touch sure."

Bucky Votes for Grove
Bucky Harris, manager of the Detroit Tigers, says that Lefty Grove, by a mile, is the best pitcher in the American League.

"It isn't easy for me to say that because I have that big fellow Uhle, who is one of the greatest pitchers of our day," he said. "I can say, though, that Uhle is the best right-hander in the league."

"Herb Pennock of the Yankees is a great left-hander. Many of the men in our league think he is a better pitcher than Grove. But when you get them down to the fine points in a discussion of pitching they will generally wind up with the conclusion that Pennock is the smarter of the two.

"But I'll go for Grove. There are times when you can outguess Pennock. There are a lot of smart batters in the league. Batters who are just as smart as batters as Pennock is smart as a pitcher. They can muck wits.

"But what can you do when a pitcher like Grove throws one down the alley so fast you can't see it? Against our club several times this year he has been so fast that Mickey Cochrane had the ball in his glove before our batter could get the bat off his shoulder. Grove has other stuff than speed also, but he relies mostly on his fast ball, and it's a beaut. If you can hit it."

Harris is willing to admit that his Tigers aren't going to win the pennant and without making predictions he gives you the impression he thinks the Athletics are the champions.

"Look at the hitting they're getting. We thought some of those fellows were hitting over their heads, but it's past time for them to flop if they were to be flops.

Bucky Harris says that Lazzari and Meusel, of the Yankees, can steal bases with anyone in baseball. . . . Johnson the Detroit outfielder, is one of the fastest men in baseball, but he has not learned how to turn the bases. . . . Gehring, although not as fast, is a better man on the bases. . . . 162 aspirants are entered in the National Amateur Golf championship tournament. . . . There are two Joneses on the list. . . . One of them is Bobby.

RIVERSIDE—a First Line Tire

THE GUARANTEE IS IMPORTANT WHEN YOU BUY TIRES

Unless a tire's performance is definitely GUARANTEED you can't be sure you're getting the best tire for your money—you're just hoping.

With RIVERSIDES you're sure! You are given a definite, specific guarantee of the minimum mileage your tire will deliver—16,000 miles!

That guarantee itself tells how good RIVERSIDE must be. It gives a better idea of Riverside quality than all the talking we could do about Riverside's big tough carcasses, live rubber tread, built by a nationally known manufacturer.

And Ward's prices, saving you $2 to $15 on every tire, clinch the argument that you're not only sure of more miles, you're actually saving money by riding on RIVERSIDES.

ARKANSAS—PHILOSOPHY

THIS PAPER MADE FROM RICE STRAW

Something for Nothing —The Story of a castaway

ARKANSAS' Grand Prairie, surrounding Stuttgart, is America's most fertile rice area. Year after year this section has shipped carloads of the rich grain, but the stalks which bore them have gone unused, sometimes even being burned to get them out of the way.

But now chemists discover new possibilities for RICE STRAW. A plant to turn this hitherto waste product into paper pulp will shortly be established.

Thus are new dollars created and added values found in material hitherto discarded.
